

THE ROAD AHEAD FOR SERIOUS ILLNESS CARE:
CCCC's 10-Year Vision for California

To transform health care in California so that medical care is aligned with individual patients' preferences: People get the care they need and no less; the care they want and no more

In 10 Years....

- The demand for high-quality care for serious illness will be widespread
- Individuals and communities will engage in conversations about care for serious illness as a normal activity where people live, learn, work, play and pray.

In 10 Years....

- Healthcare professionals will be competent and comfortable talking with patients about goals of care and treatment preferences, and will skillfully guide them to receive the care they need and want.

In 10 Years....

- Healthcare organizations will increase access to palliative care, make advance care planning conversations a consistent part of care, and ensure that patient wishes are honored at the end of life.

In 10 Years....

- Public policy and provider reimbursement will support these conversations
- Documentation of preferences will be shared across the care continuum
